RESPONSE TO AN OFFICIAL INFORMATION ACT REQUEST (REF: DOIA002-2024/25)

On 2 July 2024, you contacted the Ministry for Pacific Peoples (the Ministry) requesting under the Official Information Act 1982 (OIA), information regarding the staffing changes and the use of Te Reo Māori. I have outlined your specific requests and my responses below.

As the Ministry recently underwent organisational change in 2023, the Secretary is confident that we have the right functions in place to position us well for the future. It is currently planned that the Secretary will communicate final decisions on structural change with staff in April 2024. Change Proposal for your feedback

Secretary's foreword – a reflection of the challenge ahead

In his new book 'An Indigenous Ocean', Professor Toeolesulusulu Damon Salesa describes the ancient art of making tapa, a practice central to most Pacific cultures.

It is a labourious series of tasks involving stripping bark, sorting, scraping and endless pounding until fibres turn into the texture of cloth. The process is hard work, requiring immense force taking weeks, often months to complete. Through the process imperfections emerge, but instead of hiding these, the makers collectively use their expertise and skills to blend and mould the textile into beautiful siapo or ngatu.

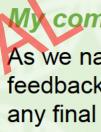

Whilst Toesulusulu uses tapa making as a metaphorical model for the process of writing, I also found similarities with the change agenda we're currently facing. All government agencies have been directed to reduce costs and identify savings.

This will require us to re-examine ourselves - to strip back, sort through and reassess. It will be hard work, unpleasant and messy at times. Over the next weeks, we will see the best of ourselves and the worst. We will do our very best to create a viable and sustainable organisational structure - it won't be perfect, but it'll be the foundation from which we will rebuild and grow.

I want to acknowledge your resilience and strength during this challenging time. I appreciate the journey over the last few years has been unsettling and hard on you and your kainga. Despite this, I am grateful for how you continue to show up and serve our Pacific communities.

Through this change, it's important we remain focused on why we exist as a Ministry. Our purpose is to serve our Pacific communities - to weave their aspirations into a thriving Aotearoa. I believe that as long as we are grounded in our purpose, we will ultimately arrive at the best possible outcome.

I ask you to challenge me and to keep me honest, whilst knowing these decisions weigh heavy on my shoulders.

I encourage you to lean on and support one another. Keep our Pacific values especially aro'a - at the core. Hold your head high and stand proud on the legacy we've built together. We are a remarkable team and I remain humbled and proud to serve alongside you.

Our purpose remains the same

In this consultation pack, we've outlined the proposed structure and the rationale to support it. Lappreciate there is a lot of information to digest, please take the time to review and discuss with your people leader.

My commitment to you

As we navigate through the consultation period, I promise to listen to your feedback. I will consider all your thoughts, ideas, and perspectives before I make any final decisions.

Context This section of the document provides the context for the proposed structural change at the Ministry

Context for this document

The purpose of this document is to present the proposed future structure of the Ministry for Pacific Peoples (MPP) to staff for feedback as part of the 2024 consultation process.

The Government has a focus on fiscal sustainability

- The Government's Mini Budget signalled a shift in focus towards reducing spending in the public sector.
- MPP has been directed to meet a 7.5% saving from • next financial year. This is based on full-time equivalent staff numbers increasing within the organisation by more than 50% since 2017 (269%).
- Savings are being sought from: •
 - o 'Low value' programmes
 - Programmes that do not align with the new Coalition Government priorities
 - 'Non-essential' back-office function
 - Contractors/consultants

MPP's 2023 change process

- Significant consultation was carried out, both internally and externally, during MPP's 2023 change process to identify the functions MPP needs to best deliver positive outcomes for its communities.
- MPP currently has seven functional units as a result of this change process - Office of the Secretary, Commissioning, Partnerships, Corporate Services, Policy & Strategy, Data & Insights, and Pacific Languages & Identities.

Delivering effective and sustainable public services

The current change process

- Maintaining our programmes and interventions in the community is strongly aligned with the Government's priorities on delivery. This includes funds allocated to providers to deliver Tupu Aotearoa, Pacific Business Trust, Pacific Community Languages, Housing, etc.
- As people is one of the largest costs for MPP, there is a need to rationalise and cluster functions in order to achieve savings targets, while still meeting agreed outputs.

Things to consider when reading this document

The following pages outline key things to keep in mind and consider as you read through this document.

Naming conventions

We want to ensure we maintain consistency when it comes to naming roles at MPP to ensure clarity on what each role does and where they sit within MPP.

Director

All Tier 3 people leader roles are titled 'Director, [title]' for consistency across the organisation.

[Title] Manager

Where a role says Manager at the end of its title, e.g., 'Office Manager', this indicates that they are managing a programme of work and does not mean they are a people manager. These roles do not encompass the strategic leadership and decision-making authority associated with a director level role.

[Role], [team/specialist area]

There are a number of Analyst/Advisor, Senior Analyst/Advisor, and Principal Analyst/Advisor roles across the organisation. To provide greater clarity, we propose changing role titles for all such Tier 4 roles to reflect their role and the name of their team and/or specialist area, e.g., Senior Analyst, Policy,

SE CONT

Role impacts

Throughout this document you will see roles that are proposed to have 'minor' changes or be disestablished. We explain what this means below:

Minor impact

A role is considered to have a 'minor' impact if they have one or more of the following:

- Role title change •

• Team change

Please note, we're using the term 'minor' in a technical way here, but we understand that some of these changes might feel quite significant to you.

new.

Delivering effective and sustainable public services

- Reporting line change
- Directorate change

Disestablished role

Where a role undergoes significant changes, like substantially different tasks or going from not managing people to managing them, it's seen as being disestablished.

Additionally, where a suggestion is made to reduce the number of people in a certain role, all those roles are considered disestablished, and the fewer roles are suggested as

Things to consider when reading this document

Assumptions

- 1. The data has been cleansed to the best of our knowledge.
- 2. Current state organisational charts shows role incumbents as at 19 March 2024, whereas the proposed structure shows roles as at 1 July 2024, which is the indicative 'go live' date of the new structure.
- 3. Data is based on roles not people.
- 4. The data does not take into account the employment status of the person within the role i.e., whether they are contractors, fixed terms, job-sharing or part-time.
- 5. All vacant roles have been included.
- 6. Where a contractor is filling a permanent role, these have been included.
- 7. Fixed term roles have been excluded. Fixed term in the context of this document is referring to the role and not the status of the person in that role.

Please let us know if something in the current state data is not correct

Appendix A includes the current MPP organisation charts. Although we have tried our best to ensure everyone is included in their correct role to give an accurate view of the structure, there may be some discrepancies. If something is not in the right place, please let us know through one of the channels specified on page 31.

While we have tried our best to clearly explain the rationale behind the proposed changes, we understand that some of the terminology may be new or require further clarification.

If you come across anything technical in the document that you don't quite understand, please don't hesitate to reach out. It is important that you understand what these proposed changes mean and how this may impact you. We're here to help and clarify any questions you may have.

Proposed directorate overview: Corporate & Support Services

The proposed new Corporate & Support Services directorate combines current Corporate Services and Office of the Secretary directorates, merging teams across both functions to create an integrated support service model.

Corporate & Support Services would provide end to end support services across MPP by streamlining operations, enhancing coordination, and optimising support services across the organisation.

Directorate purpose

Corporate & Support Services would ensure we have the necessary resources, including people, processes, technology and funding, to operate effectively and efficiently. The directorate would play a vital role in safeguarding MPP by managing risks and ensuring compliance with public sector legislation and expectations. Additionally, the directorate would enable MPP to communicate effectively with stakeholders, put its best foot forward with Ministers and Parliament, and work towards a shared set of priorities.

Corporate & Support Services would collaborate with and provide support to every other team within MPP. Its teams would employ a business partnering approach, enabling other directorates within MPP to tap into the wide expertise within the Corporate & Support Services directorate.

What about the Ministerial Services and Performance teams?

The Ministerial Services roles are proposed to sit in the Executive Office and the Performance team is proposed to sit in the new Policy & Insights directorate. Details of these proposed changes are outlined in the following sections under each new proposed directorate, respectively.

Proposed directorate overview: Policy & Insights

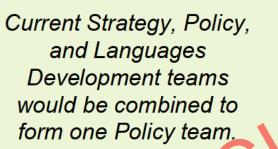

The proposed new Policy & Insights directorate combines current Policy & Strategy and Data & Insights directorates. Languages Development capability would be combined with both Policy and Strategy teams under a singular new Policy team. Additionally, the Performance team would be housed here.

Policy & Insights would create a centralised feedback loop where strategy and policies are evidence driven and informed by key insights and data.

Directorate purpose

Policy & Insights would leverage robust data and insights to provide robust, strategic Pacific policy advice and analysis to Ministers and other agencies, supporting the development of effective strategies and programmes aimed at improved, short, medium and long-term outcomes for Pacific communities.

The directorate would work alongside agencies to build and analyse Pacific data and monitor and report on the performance of the system. The directorate would also ensure MPP is a data driven organisation and well positioned for the future, allowing for rapid, agile, and measurable outcomes for Pacific peoples based on robust data that drives meaningful insights.

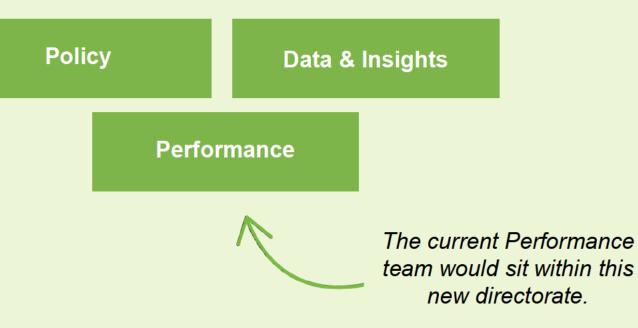

This would include generic Policy roles as well as dedicated Languages roles.

What about the Evidence & Insights team? The Evidence & Insights team is proposed to be disestablished with Research capability being proposed to be outsourced.

Proposed directorate overview: Commissioning & Partnerships

The proposed new Commissioning & Partnerships directorate combines the current Commissioning directorate and Partnerships directorate. Regional teams from these directorates are merged with the Languages Implementation team to integrate commissioning and partnerships capability. Additionally, the Inclusion and Cultural Practice team (renamed to Pacific Identities & Advisory) would sit in Commissioning and Partnerships to group community engagement capability.

Commissioning & Partnerships would focus on building a collaborative team to service the commissioning cycle while building and maintaining partnerships across the community at a local level.

Directorate purpose

The 'Commissioning & Partnerships' directorate would serve as the nexus for fostering robust relationships with Pacific Aotearoa communities while strategically guiding the commissioning cycle for services. With a focus on collaboration and engagement, this directorate would lead the charge in building and maintaining partnerships essential for the success of the MPP at the local level.

It would ensure that the aspirations and perspectives of Pacific communities are integral to government decisionmaking processes through a comprehensive engagement strategy. The directorate would oversee all stages of the commissioning lifecycle, from initial planning and design to ongoing monitoring and review of services. Final information on roles that are available, as well as any related collateral, will be provided alongside the final decision document.

We will communicate well with you

We will re-assign where we can

We will communicate in a staggered way, across those most impacted:

- 1. We will communicate the changes 1:1 with each person whose role has been disestablished or moved to a new group/leader.
- 2. The organisation will be informed of the the final organisational structure as part of the final decision document.
- 3. People leaders will work with their teams for any external stakeholders who need to be updated on these changes.

Where possible, we will re-assign as many people as we can. Permanent employees will be re-assigned into a role without having to go through an assessment and selection process if:

- the role is comparable or a suitable alternative, and
- the number of people eligible for confirmation is the same or less than the jobs available.

Where there are more permanent employees than comparable or suitable alternative roles, a selection process will be used once final decisions have been made on the changes to the organisational structure.

Recruitment for new or vacant roles will be open through an expression of interest (EOI) process. These roles will be open to affected permanent employees in the first instance, and they will be able to apply for all new or vacant roles prior to external recruitment.

Once applications close, affected people will go through the selection process. Once this is completed, any other internal applicants will go through the selection process.

Voluntary redundancy will be considered for those interested in applying. More information about this process and what it could mean for you will be included in the decision document.

Recruitment will be open internally first

We recruit externally

More information about the EOI process will be included in the decision

Finally, if roles are not filled internally, these will be advertised externally.

Te tumu rakau 'akau putuputu 'ia e te matangi ketaketa rai toona aka The tree that is often challenged by the wind develops strong roots

Secretary's Foreword

Early this year, I signalled the challenges ahead with a directive from the Government to identify savings across the public sector. I have now determined the impact of achieving savings and made final decisions on the shape of our organisational structure.

I recognise that the nature of the environment we are operating in has meant that timelines have not allowed talanoa or engagement in the way it would normally be done as Pacific peoples. It has been a difficult task to honour everyone and your innate integrity, while also making the necessary reductions to the size of our organisation.

However, I have been continually humbled by your support throughout this process. Thank you all for the energy and consideration you put into our consultation process. From attending my weekly drop-in sessions, asking thoughtful questions, and submitting detailed feedback submissions. It has not been easy, but I know your contributions have made the final structure stronger and better able to deliver on our mission.

While feedback was generally supportive of the high-level structure, there were many alternative suggestions for specific teams and capabilities to be placed in different areas across the organisation.

I identified three key themes – Communication & Engagement, Process, and Structure/Design. These themes are discussed in detail throughout this document, including an overview of each theme and what I heard.

You'll see that your feedback resulted in several changes to the proposal.

While I could not make every change and still achieve our required savings, I believe we have reached the best decisions together under the circumstances, for the future of the Ministry and the communities we serve.

Looking ahead, my priority is to carry out a fair process as we confirm people into roles through the expression of interest process. From there, we will work together to review our work programme to fit the reduced size, capacity, and priorities of MPP.

Malo 'aupito Gerardine

Feedback summary and themes

Over the consultation period, we received a total of 115 feedback and question submissions, including contributions from both individuals and groups. In general, feedback received was about three key areas (as outlined) which are discussed further on the following page.

Summary of feedback

We received 115 feedback and question submissions, including:

- 46 via anonymous form
- 69 via the change inbox

Of these, 15 were collective submissions (e.g. directorate, team, or group submissions).

45 of the submissions contained questions only

 12 frequently asked questions were developed to address questions received via the anonymous form.

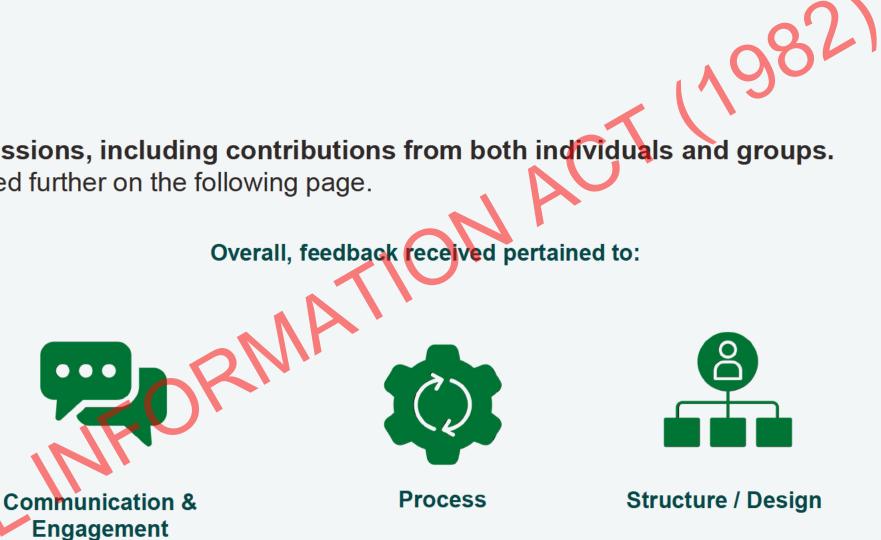

Among the 70 feedback submissions, there were over 250 suggestions, considerations, thoughts, and opinions shared regarding the proposed structure/design.

From these submissions we have identified key themes, both in general with regards to the process and overall structure, and for each directorate.

The breakdown below indicates the extent of feedback pertaining to each directorate regarding the structure / design.

- 125 pieces of feedback relating to Commissioning & Partnerships
- 60 pieces of feedback relating to Policy & Insights

- 45 pieces of feedback relating to Corporate & Support Services
- 15 pieces of feedback relating to the Executive Office.

What we heard

Feedback overall was supportive of the proposed changes with some alternative suggestions for specific teams and capability to be placed in alternative areas across the organisation (discussed in the following pages). We identified three key themes - Communication & Engagement, Process, and Structure / Design. Below is an overview of each key theme and what we heard.

Communication & Engagement

- The change process has not allowed us to properly engage and reflect our pacific values or the 'Pacific way' of doing things.
- Feelings of uncertainty, stress and wellbeing have been experienced as part of the change process.
- The timing of when letters were sent out and how they were received could have been better.
- There is uncertainty around the 7.5% cost savings target - what this means, how it will be calculated, and what other areas will be explored for cost savings (e.g. programmes, assets).

Process

- Overall, there is support and understanding of the change process and the need for this to happen.
- There is an opportunity for the Change Team to better reflect MPP's workforce, and to have more Pacific representation.
 - There is a strong desire for recruitment during the EOI process to be fair and for the process to be clear and transparent.
- There is a concern that through this process, key talent and knowledge will be lost.
- There is a desire to understand what will happen after the change process and other areas that will be reviewed as part of achieving the cost saving target.

Structure / Design

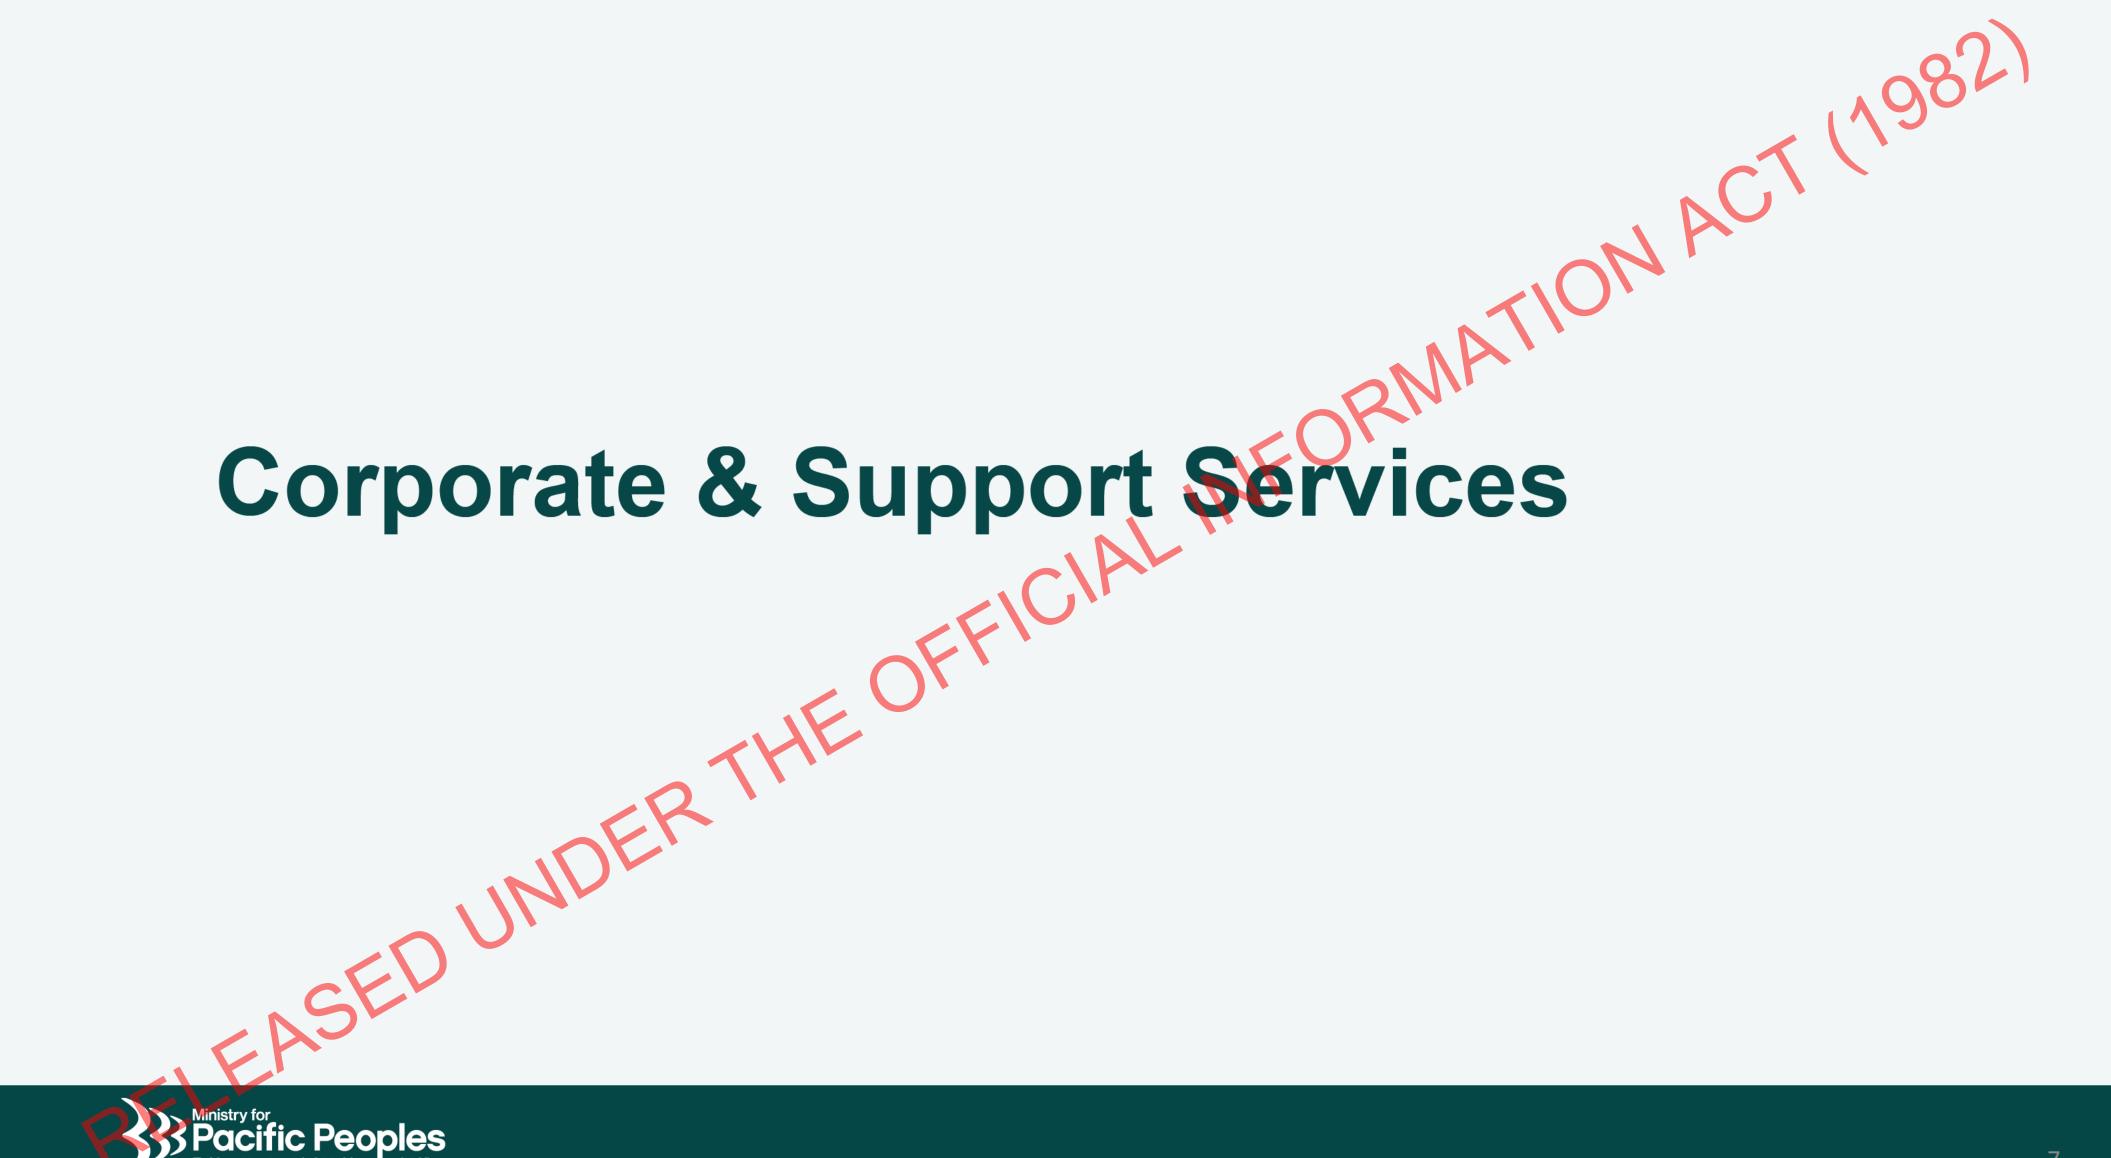

- There is agreement and support for the clustering of directorates.
- Preservation of languages capability is a capability that MPP needs to maintain.
- There is a concern that the reduced number of roles will result in an increased workload and impact the ability to effectively deliver responsibilities.
- There is appetite to explore alternative options for placing teams and capability across MPP, in particular the teams proposed in the Commissioning & Partnerships directorate.
- There are suggestions for naming conventions for teams and roles.
- It is important to understand how teams will work together in the new structure.

Feedback & confirmed Formation ACT (1982) rganisational deather

This section responds to feedback themes and confirms MPP's new organisational design as of 1 July 2024.

RNATION ACT (1984 Expression of interest (EOI) Process

This section of the document provides an overview of how you can express interest in a newly confirmed position in the confirmed structure

Our transition approach

The following approach will be taken to transition to the confirmed structure.

We will communicate well with you

We will communicate in a staggered way, across those most impacted:

- 1. We will communicate the changes 1:1 with each person whose role has been disestablished or moved to a new group/leader.
- 2. The organisation will be informed of the final organisational structure as part of the final decision document.
- 3. People leaders will work with their teams for any external stakeholders who need to be updated on these changes.

We will re-assign or redeploy where we can

Where possible, we will re-assign or redeploy as many people as we can.

More detailed information on what this means can be found on page 38.

Recruitment for new or vacant roles will be open through an expression of interest (EOI) process. These roles will be open to affected permanent employees in the first instance, and they will be able to apply for all new or vacant roles prior to external recruitment.

Once applications close, affected people will go through the selection process. Once this is completed, any other internal applicants will go through the selection process.

Recruitment will be open internally first

We recruit externally

More information about the EOI process is included over the following

Finally, if roles are not filled internally, these will be advertised externally.

Our Expression of Interest (EOI) approach

Our aim through the EOI process is to minimise the impact on people as much as possible. The definitions below provide an overview of what it means to be confirmed or reassigned into a role, and how we can support you with redeployment.

Being confirmed into a role

Permanent employees will be confirmed into a role without an assessment and selection process if:

- the role is comparable to your current role and
- the number of people currently in the role is the same or less than the number of new comparable roles available.

A comparable role is generally similar to the old role. There may be minor changes to the role such as some change to the job functions, a title change, or a change in reporting line. Those who are included in the 'Minor Changes Impact Tables' (refer to Appendix B) will be confirmed into their roles.

NB: A role is considered to have a minor change if they have a change in role title, reporting line, directorate, and/or team.

Permanent employees will be reassigned into a role without having to go through an assessment and selection process if:

the number of people eligible for confirmation is the same or less than the jobs available.

A suitable alternative role is one that is reasonably within the skills and experience of the employee, is in the same location or reasonable commuting distance, and maintains the same salary. Those who are eligible to be reassigned into a new or vacant role will receive a letter confirming this.

Being reassigned into a role

the role is a suitable alternative, and

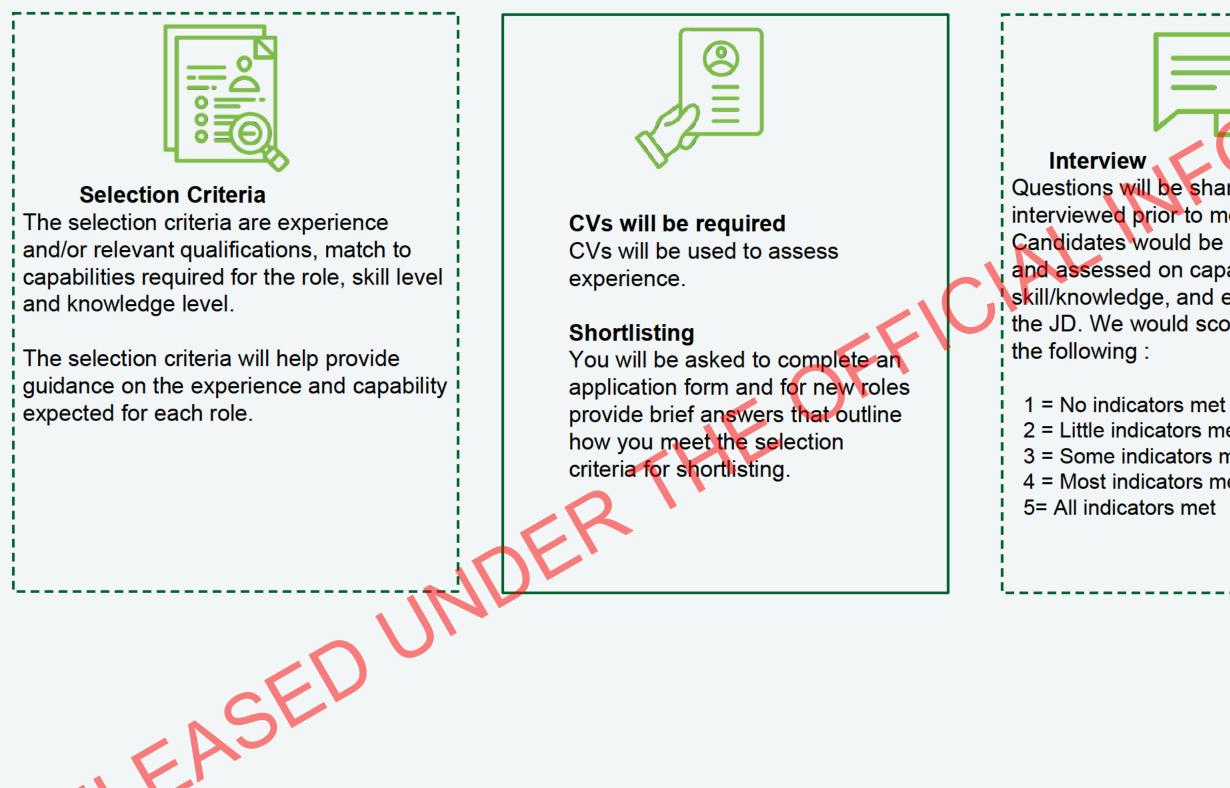

We will redeploy where we can

If your role has been disestablished, we will work with you to identify suitable positions for you to be redeployed into.

For a position to be an option for redeployment it must be either new or vacant and be suitable for the affected individual.

Our Expression of Interest (EOI) Application Process

We want to create an environment where you can be yourself and put your best foot forward. We encourage you to apply for all the roles you are interested in, and have provided some information below to help support you. The application process will consist of the following components:

Questions will be shared with those being interviewed prior to meeting.

Candidates would be asked questions and assessed on capabilities, skill/knowledge, and experience, as per the JD. We would score each based on

2 = Little indicators met 3 = Some indicators met 4 = Most indicators met

Roles with a reduced number

When there are a reduced number of the same roles, selection of existing staff will be required. Proposed selection criteria are experience, and match to capabilities required for the role. Those are substantially the same as were used in the previous change.

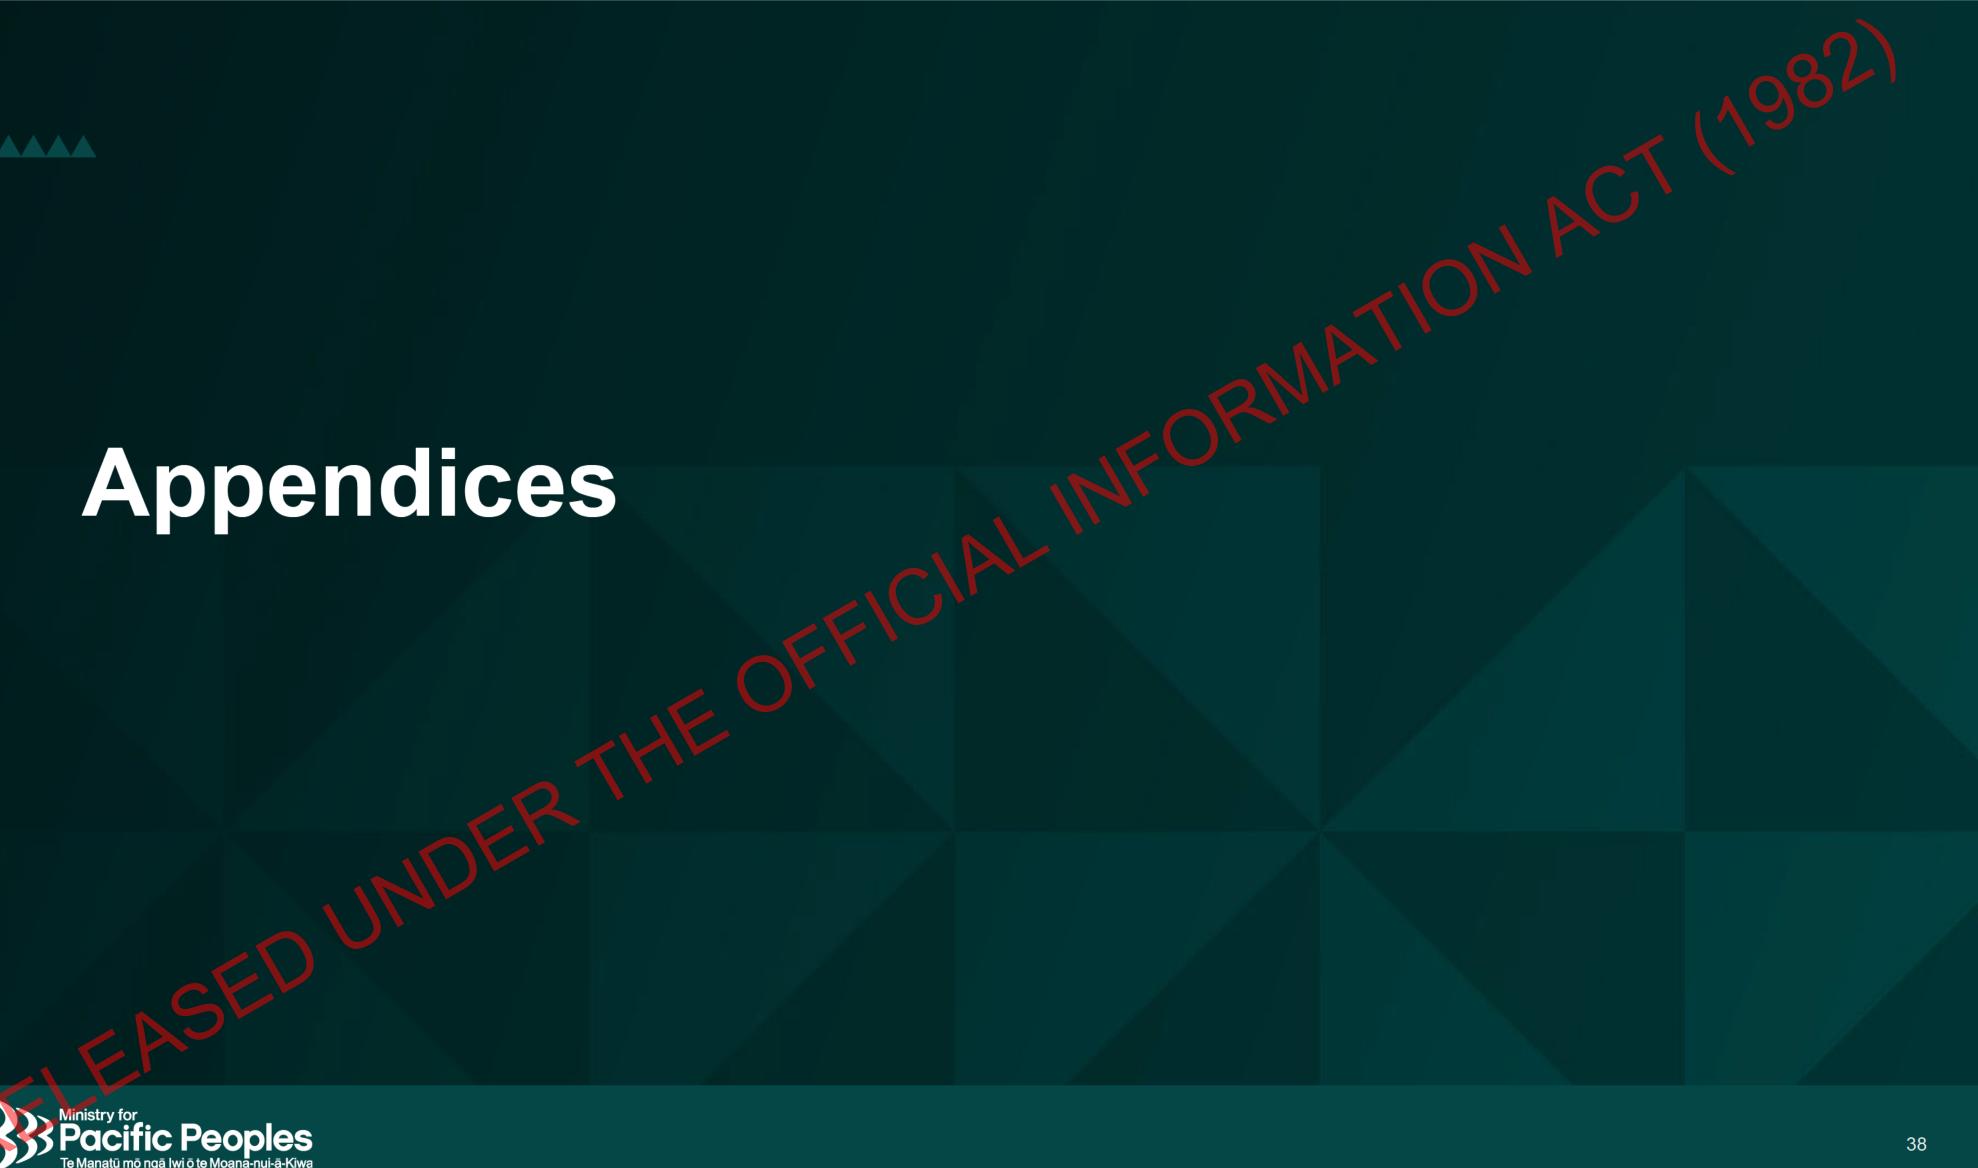

If you have any comment or suggestion about those proposed criteria, please let us have any input by 16 May 2024
